Press Release

Tom Baine Is Running for the Duval County School Board – District 6

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Monday, August 17, 2009

Tom Baine is formally announcing his candidacy for the Duval County School Board in District 6.

With considerable leadership experience in the airline, banking, and consulting industries, as well as a dozen years of experience in the military, Tom Baine will bring much-needed outside leadership experience and vision to the board. A native of Jacksonville and a graduate of Andrew Jackson High School and the University of North Florida, he knows the problems facing the school system today and understands the dire needs of students and teachers with regards to the resources they need to be successful. He believes that the taxpayers are not currently receiving the value for their tax dollars they deserve in education, and that there is room for considerable improvement in the school system today. He wants the citizens of Duval County to have confidence and pride in their public schools.

Tom Baine thinks that Duval County has the potential to be the leader in public education in Florida, and he will work tirelessly to make that vision a reality. He adds that “proactive, common-sense leadership is the key to improving the quality of education in Duval County.” Persuasive leadership, he believes, is the key to driving achievement in the student ranks, and teachers are the keys to success.
